Even a quarter of an hour's prayer in front of the Eucharist perhaps gains more graces than all the other spiritual exercises of the day (outside of Mass). (St. Alphonsus Ligouri)

October 28th, 1599 - April 30th, 1672,
Marie of the Incarnation burned with a desire that the God whom she loved should be known and loved by others. She developed a spirituality that was marked by its universality. The apostolic prayer that she recited every day bears witness to this:

“It is by the heart of my dear Jesus, my way, my truth and my life, that I approach you, O eternal Father. ... In spirit I go around the world seeking the souls redeemed by the most precious blood of my Divine Spouse, in order to make reparation for them by this divine Heart. I kiss them to present them to you through him, and through him I ask you for their conversion. ... Ah, let them live by the divine Heart.”

Joining contemplation and action in a most marvelous way, she found God in all things and thus also lived in familiarity with the Virgin Mary: “I felt her without seeing her, near me, accompanying me everywhere in the alleys and byways that it suited him to lead me through in the building.” She tells of a time when she invited Mary to come with her to inspect a construction site: “Come, Blessed Mother, let’s go see our workers,” she prayed.

Saint Joseph appeared to her and offered to guide her steps as she envisioned her life in Canada. He remained her protector, always close to Jesus and Mary

She wrote the Constitutions and Rule of the Ursulines of Quebec (1647), and created dictionaries, grammars, catechisms and prayer books in four First Nations languages. Then, at the request of her son, by now a member of the Benedictine Order, she wrote an autobiographical memoir on “her states of prayer and of grace”.

She was beatified by Pope (now Saint) John Paul II on June 22, 1980 and canonized by Pope Francis on April 3, 2014.
